Re: National Bioengineered “BE” Food Disclosure Statement

Product Name: Chef's Quality Chicken Fry Mix

Product Ref #: HAZ110423-V006

Customer: JRD, IMD LLC

U.S. Secretary of Agriculture announced the National Bioengineered Food Disclosure Standard on December 20, 2018. The National Bioengineered Food Disclosure Law, passed by Congress in July of 2016, directed USDA to establish this national mandatory standard for disclosing foods that are or may be bioengineered.

The Standard defines bioengineered foods as those that contain detectable genetic material that has been modified through certain lab techniques and cannot be created through conventional breeding or found in nature.

The Agricultural Marketing Service (AMS) developed the List of Bioengineered Foods to identify the crops or foods that are available in a bioengineered form throughout the world and for which regulated entities must maintain records. These records will inform regulated entities about whether they must make a bioengineered food disclosure.

The Standard requires food manufacturers, importers, and certain retailers to ensure bioengineered foods are appropriately disclosed. Regulated entities have several disclosure options: text, symbol, electronic or digital link, and/or text message. Additional options such as a phone number or web address are available to small food manufacturers or for small and very small packages.

The product listed above has been reviewed per the BE disclosure ruling:

Based on the information and documentation currently available to Idan Foods, the product noted above contains conventional yellow corn flour. The supplier has indicated that its conventional corn products may contain genetically modified organisms.

Idan Foods maintains applicable supplier documentation and records regarding the bioengineered status of ingredients in accordance with the USDA National Bioengineered Food Disclosure Standard.
